second-class matter. Frank E. Langley, Publisher,

In case of the Mother Eddy will, there's a weighing of it.

When Capt.-elect Fisher of the Harvard football eleven hooks Yale, his election will have been justified.

If example is worthy anything, it would behoove President Farrell of the steel trust to wear smoked glasses when going to the theatre hereafter.

The great army of those who "attended school with Taft" is now being mustered. Hurry, before the ranks are full and before the people get skeptical!

The office of "city chamberlain" seems to be an appendage of no great value to the municipality in New York; at least, the city has been getting along without Mr. Hyde, who holds that job for $12,000 per year. Perhaps, instead of reducing courses of instruction in the public schools, the city will now lop off such offices as that of "chamberlain" and more.

The postal savings bank has not yet come up to the expectations of the sponsors of the project, but the time has really been too short to give a reasonable exploitation of the scheme, the offices at Montpelier and one other place in each of the New England states having been opened for the banking business less than two weeks. Perhaps we may look for development of popularity with the spread of information about the system. Till then it is only reasonable to suspend adverse criticism.

With the single exception of Berlin, N. H., not a single city in Maine or New Hampshire went ahead in the percentage of population increase during the past ten years; and Berlin headed Barre by a margin of five points. The population statistics of those two states reveal a great similarity to the figures given out for Vermont some time ago, in that rural sections of the states decreased in population, while the gain was confined to the larger centers of population. The great strides of Berlin in the neighboring state were due to the development of the paper-making industry.

It is high time that the Vermont House were cutting off the privilege of introducing bills. The total number is now nearly seven hundred, and the book file is already full of useless paper. The limit should have been reached long before this; and the members who had failed to have their measures presented by that time should have been made to explain matters to their constituents as best they might. Perhaps the failure to get bills before the legislature would have served as a warning to future legis- interest must expect a certain measure lators who are disposed to procrastinate of criticism; at least, he should not and thus steal the state's time.

New Hampshire general court are of greater importance than those which the across the river the contest has more of form of government.

But we find a striking similarity between the material which the legislators of the two states are called upon to decide. For instance, we learn that there tween the material which the legislators are porcupines in New Hampshire because someone wants to assist an infant industry to get rich off their killing too severe in their denunciation of the paid. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Wilindustry to get rich off their killing.

New Hampshire might take Vermont acts of the present legislators. Neverate their home on Main street. New Hampshire might take Vermont precedent and save itself a great deal of time spant in debate. New Hamps shire ought to know that if a price is party duplicity which goes to the polls M. Comstock Tuesday, on a complaint shire ought to know that if a price is not put on the head of Mr. Porcupine and his family then all the Vermont to ignore those promises almost in their sued, which charged him with having porcupines which are worrying about entirety after securing the votes and committed the crime of adultery with that bounty will just run across the when the opportunity comes for putting one Mary Greenleaf Rayce of Brookriver, and then where will New Hampshire be? For self defense, New Hampshire will have to mark up the price and realization there is a yawning chasm. half of the state was Mrs. Royce, the on the porcupine.

RESENTING CRITICISM.

When a man decides to stand for election to public office, he accepts also the responsibilities which go with that position, in case he should be fortunate

Statistics prove the life of an average store is twenty years. By that time, so the report states, it is so loaded up with old goods that the merchant goes under.

Fortunately ours is not an average store. It's a special store, and every January we have a special sale that cleans out the stock. Be a gainer by acting on our daily advertisements-a special sale each day on suits, overcoats, hats, furnishings. To-day-fifty suits, the lively grays, $5 knocked off the price of each suit.

Five dozen shirts at 65c each-some of the $1.50 quality in the lot.

A broken lot of hoseodd sizes, too few to talk about, 15c per pair, two pair for 25c-only enough for early customers.
